Media Kit

At a very young age, Heidi Vanlandingham discovered a need to travel and a love for books and writing. It didn't matter what implement found its way into her hand—pencil, pen, or crayon (red and green were her favorites)—she rewrote all her favorite stories by scribbling her (often unintelligible) words over the printed pages of her picture books. Thankfully, her technique has improved, and she currently writes historical western, snarky fantasy, and paranormal romance. Her stories make you laugh, groan, or cry along with her characters.

Heidi graduated with a BA in Science, English emphasis, from the University of Central Oklahoma with two minors in Business Administration and History. She also has an Associates in Art degree from Rose State Community College. Her writing includes: Mail-Order Brides of the Southwest 6-book series, Western Trails 6-book series, and the prequel book #16 in the American Mail-Order Brides series (a 50-book, 50-author series), a four-novella historical Christmas romance series, a World War II fiction romance with paranormal elements, a World War II Paranormal-alternate reality romance series, and a Paranormal romance series.

Born and raised in Oklahoma, Heidi grew up learning about Indian Territory. But it wasn't until after several people she knew commented about all Native American men wearing loincloths and all tribes living in teepees that she wrote Trail of Hope, the first book in her Western Trails series. Her books in this series strive to explain the differences between tribes and how they really lived. The Native cultures are diverse and truly wonderful to read about and experience firsthand. Her first love, both reading and writing, is anything paranormal, especially when they have a touch of humor.

Heidi currently lives in Central Oklahoma with her husband and youngest son.

What readers have to say about Heidi's books:

Natalya

Natalya is an electrifying WWII paranormal historical thriller that will keep readers on the edges of their seats! Throughout Natalya and Mikhail's story, Ms. Vanlandingham expertly integrates historical events of the war, along with the ever-present fear of death, bombings, and starvation. Furthermore, the whims of a goddess add a paranormal twist that will engage readers' imaginations as they consider "what if..." An emotional roller-coaster ride of action and romance that transcends time, Natalya has it all!

~InD'Tale Magazine

In Mage We Trust

The author's voice is strong and very soon I was pulled into a world of demons and mages. There were quite a few times I found myself laughing out loud at the sarcasm and antics of the characters. I was blown away at how utterly unique this story line is! Each time I thought the story was predictable, I was proven wrong by purple imps and hog queens lol.

~Stephanie Herman, Amazon Review

Lucie: Bride of Tennessee

This well-written romance had a well-defined cast of endearing characters, each with their own personalities and quirks.

~Robin Echols, Goodreads Review

Trail of Hope

This author has done a wonderful job showing some of the prejudice and treatment of those Indians. She also shows the character of those same Indians on that horrific journey that history has rightfully named "Trail of Tears". These are rich characters and this author weaves a beautiful story out of a heart wrenching event.
